Louise Isackson

Born in Sydney Australia, raised in Brisbane, Louise spent much of her early childhood listening to her parents' piano playing and singing. "My mother was a huge fan of Nina Simone." Her earliest memories were of seeing plays, musicals, operas and ballets, classical concerts.

By her teenage years, Louise found herself immersed in the art world, whilst studying vocal technique at the Brisbane conservatorium with a range of teachers, both male and female. Her vocal training started with a classical/operatic approach and moved naturally into jazz and contemporary styles. Regular duo and group gigs followed before she was offered a six month contract in Japan as part of a jazz cabaret band.
